Violet is on mat leave. Florence is on sick leave. Both of them are moms, tied to their young children by invisible wires of steel... while their spouses barely notice they're alive. One day these two bored, abandoned and dissatisfied women join forces to fight back in the most hilarious way possible: by going on a mission to seduce a string of lovers... all without walking out the front door.

Fun fact: the French film version of Home Deliveries has just won Special Jury Award for Writing at Sundance last month.

Home Deliveries stars Aurora Chan, Stefania Indelicato, Daniel Martin, Dan Tait Brown and Alina Quarin. It is directed by Diane Brown, with set design by Heipo Leung, lighting design by Christian Ching, costume design by Sarah Sosick, assistant costume design Danielle Morrison, sound design by Hannah DuMez, technical direction by Kelsey John Torok, stage management by Emelia Findley, and is produced by Linda Begg with assistant producer Lynn Mockler.
